A Satisfactory Laundry.

This is a satisfactory laundry. We wash and iron delicate laces just as well as we do plain cloth. Everything is done just as you wish. If you ask us to iron the points of your collars dowu instead of up—we make note of it—and do it. Therein lies the secret of our success—attention and care to small things.

OUR PRICES ARE REASONABLE.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

In presenting the Sixth Edition of the Toledo Blue Book, the publishers give greeting to old friends and new. Toledo has grown and prospered in the past two years. The city has become more metropolitan. A large portion of her people have means and leisure for the life polite and in consequence the mission of the Blue Book has become greater. In the two years past Toledo has found closer relations with her neighbors. Her commercial connection with surrounding cities and towns has become more intimate. Social exchanges are more frequent. Societies of Toledo and those of her neighbors have put each other on their calling lists. In recognition of these facts, and with the desire to increase this friendly spirit, the Blue Book has enclosed in its covers carefully selected social lists of twenty-five surrounding towns and cities. With this brief announcement the publishers of the Toledo Blue Book hand to the social world of Northwestern Ohio as complete and accurate a directory as can be compiled.

Frankfort, on Lake Michigan.

An ideal Summer Resort. The days are pleasant there! The nights cool! The scenery inspiring! Its health giving mineral springs have no superior.

Crystal Lake. . . . . .

The name indicates its character. The unusual purity and clearness of its waters is something marvelous. As a spot where the tourist can while away a week, a month or a summer it is unsurpassed.

These resorts are very popular with Toledo people, they are located on the away up in Northern Michigan, "where the summer cool winds blow." Surrounding them are numerous other lakes and streams filled with Trout, Bass, Pickerel and Muscalonge that the angler is at liberty to entice from their cool retreats if he knows how.

DON'T WRITE LETTERS

To ourselves praising the various departments of the SUNDAY COURIER and print them in our own columns as "Communications," "kind, helpful letters from a friend," and so fourth, etcetera, ad nauseam.

The fact that the SUNDAY COURIER has more than twice as many readers and buyers as any exclusive Sunday paper in Toledo proves our theory —that the people know a *news*paper from a bundle of essays, "ideas," issues, puffs and padding.

The Social Department is complete, clean, reliable, dignified.

The Musical Critic's column is honest, unbiased, fearless and intelligent.

The Tatler's aim is to reflect and condense the ideas of the progressive merchant who brings on "new things."

The Cycling Page is replete with news of the local manufacturers and riders.

The Gleaner's aim is to present matters local and semi-personal in a chatty manner, spiced with poetic gems on local topics.

The SUNDAY COURIER'S Horse Department treats of the horse as the "gentleman's friend."

The Editorial Page is free from personalities, the Editor believing that brevity is the essence of power, and independence the soul of manhood.

The City Editor and his corps of newsgathers are in league with the management, and allow no item of legitimate local news to escape. All items of a sensational nature are barrad.

The Sunday Morning Courier

(24 PAGES)

Is a newspaper published on modern ideas and in an attractive shape and form. It is not "hawked" about the streets, but is delivered by the COURIER'S own corps of trusty carriers direct from the office at the popular price of $1.50 per year.

The

Ideal Steam Cooker

COOKS A WHOLE MEAL
OVER ONE BURNER.....

On gasoline, oil, gas or common cook stove. The steam whistle blows when Cooker needs more water. No steam in the house. No offensive odors. Burning, scorching or overcooking impossible. Vegetables that always lose much of their flavor and become watery, soggy and indigestible by boiling, are made dry, light and healthful. Meats and poultry, no matter how tough, are made tender and palatable. Will pay for itself in one season for canning fruit.

ETIQUETTE NOTES.

A FEW PARAGRAPHS OF ETIQUETTE ARRANGED FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF BUSY FOLKS.

INVITATIONS, CARDS AND VISITS.

"The old traditions of stately manners, so common to the Washington and Jefferson days, have almost died out here, as similar manners have died all over the world. The war of 1861 swept away what little was left of that once important American fact—a grandfather. We began all over again; and now there comes up from this newer world a flood of questians: How shall we manage all this? How shall we use a fork? When wear a dress-coat? How and when and on whom shall we leave our cards? How long and for whom shall we wear mourning? In fact, there is one great universal question, what is the etiquette of good society?"—(Mrs. John Sherwood.)

Now in ten different books on etiquette, which we have consulted, we find ten different opinions upon the subject of first calls, as between two women. We cannot, therefore, presume to decide where so many doctors disagree, but give the commonly received opinion as expressed by the customs of New York society.

When should a lady call first upon a new and a desirable acquaintance? Not hastily. She should have met the new and desirable acquaintance; should have been properly introduced; should feel sure that her acquaintance is desired. The oldest resident, the one most prominent in fashion, should call first; but if there is no such distinction, two women need not forever stand at bay, each waiting for the other to call.

First calls should be returned within a week. If a lady is invited to any entertainment by a new acquaintance, whether the invitation come through a friend or not, she should immediately leave cards, and send either a regret or an acceptance. Whether she attend the entertainment or not, she should call after it within a week. Then having done all that is polite, and having shown herself a woman of good breeding, she can keep up the acquaintance or not as she pleases.

Ladies can, and often do, write informal invitations on the visiting card. To teas, readings and small parties may be added the day of reception. Every invitation can be sent by post now, except an invitation to dinner, and that must always be sent by private hand, and an answer must be immediately returned in the same formal manner.

After balls, amateur concerts, theatrical parties, garden parties or "at homes" cards should be left by all invited guests within a week after the invitation, particularly if the invited guest has been obliged to decline. These cards may be left without inquiring for the hostess, if time presses; but it is more polite to inquire for the hostess, even if it is not her day. If it is her reception day, enter and pay a personal visit. After a dinner, one must inquire for the hostess and pay a personal visit.

It is not considered necessary to call again or leave cards after a tea or a reception, the hostess calls on all those who visited her on either occasion. A lady leaves her cards as she enters the hall, pays her visit, and the etiquette of a visiting acquaintance is thus established for a year. She should, however, give a tea or reception, asking all her entertainers. It is not necessary to leave a card for a guest on reception days.

In calling on a friend who is staying with people with whom you are not acquainted, always leave a card for the lady of the house. It is never proper to call on a guest without asking for the hostess.

Strangers staying in town who wish to be called upon, should send their cards by post, with address attached, to those whom they would like to see. We have been asked by many: "To whom should the answer to an invitation be addressed?" If Mr. and Mrs. Brown invite you, answer Mr and Mrs. Brown, if Mrs. Brown invites you answer Mrs. Brown. We notice that on all English cards the "R. S. V. P." is omitted, and that a plain line of English script is engraved, saying: "The favor of an answer is requested." Nothing should be printed on a card except the three letters "P. P. C." No such words as "accepts," "declines," "regrets," should be written on a card.

Card to inquire after friends during illness must be left in person, and not sent by post. On a lady's visiting card must be written above the printed names, "To inquire," and nothing else should be added to these words. These cards should be replied to by cards with, "Thanks for kind inquiries" written below the owner's name. These cards are generally sent by post, as they are dispatched while the person inquired after is still an invalid, although convalesing.

Cards of condolence can be left as late as the week after the event, which occasions them, but should be sent as soon as possible. The cards are left at the door by the person inquiring for the afflicted persons, and one card is as good as half a dozen. When persons, who have been in mourning, wish to re-enter society, they should leave cards on all their friends and acquaintances, as an intimation that they are equal to paying and receiving calls. In cases where cards of inquiry have been left, they should be replied to by cards with "Thanks for kind inquiries" written upon them.—(Mrs. John Sherwood.)

An invitation to an afternoon tea, an "at home," or a church wedding, does not require a regret; but a card by post to represent you when you are unable to be present. An invitation to a home wedding or reception requires a written acceptance or regret.

The turning down of the corner of the visiting card has gone out of fashion.

One does not leave cards at an evening reception.

If the mother and a married daughter are both receiving, it is the proper thing to leave a card for each of them.

When calling, one leaves a card whether one's hostess is at home or not.

A clergyman's visiting card should be worded in this way: "Reverend Francis Brown Stevens." The address should be in the lower left hand corner.

Answers are requested to all invitations except to those to an "at home," an afternoon tea or a church wedding.

An invitation to a clergyman and his wife should be addressed to "The Reverend and Mrs. John Smith."

LAYING AND SERVING THE DINNER TABLE.

The table should be covered with a cotton-flannel tablecloth (or silence cloth), white. if the table-cover is the ordinary damask; red, if the open work table-cover is to be used. The tablecloth, if of white damask, should be ironed with one long fold down the middle; the red velvet carpet, or ornamental cover is laid down the center to afford a relief of color to the epergne resting upon it. Above this stands a large silver salver, lined with reflecting glass, on which Dresden swan and silver lilies seem floating in a lake. The butler measures with his hand, from the edge of the table to the end of his middle finger, and places the first glass or water-goblet, and the claret, wine, hock and champagne glasses are grouped about it. A plate is put at each place, large enough to hold the majolica plate with the oysters. At each of the four corners of the table stand four ruby glass flagons set in gold, silver gilt vases, with centers of cut glass, hold the bonbons and smaller fruits. Four candelabra hold up red wax candles with red shades, and flat glass troughs, fiilled with flowers, stand opposite each place. The ornamentation of the dinner table is high rather than low in modern fashion. High candlesticks, high vases, high glasses for the flowers, and tall glass compotiers. A favorite device for a salt cellar is a silver vase about two inches high, with a shell for salt. The napkins are simply folded containing a roll or slice of bread. Two knives, forks and spoons, all of silver, a soup spoon and an oyster fork being the usual number laid at each plate. At each place, as the servant draws back the chair, the guest sees a bewildering number of glass goblets, wine and champagne glasses, several forks, knives and spoons, and a majolica plate holding oysters on the half shell, with a lemon in the center of the plate. At his right hand a goblet for water, two of the broad, flat, flaring shape of the modern champagne glass. (Some people are using the long vase-like glass of the past.) A beautiful Bohemian green glass for the hock, a ruby-red glass for the claret, two other large white claret or bergundy glasses, and three wine glasses. After the guests are seated the servants pass red and black pepper in silver pepper-pots. After the oysters are eaten, plates are removed and two kinds of soup are passed—a white and a brown. The service is a la russe; that is, everything is handed by the servants. Nothing is seen on the table except the wines (and only a few of these), the bonbons and the fruit.

On the sideboard or table should be a row of large forks, a row of large knives, a row of small ones, a row of table-spoons, sauce-ladles, desert-spoons, fish-slice and fork, a few tumblers, rows of claret, sherry and madeira glasses, and the reserve of dinner-plates. On another table should be placed the finger-bowls and glass dessert-plates, the smaller spoons and coffee cups and saucers. On the table nearest the door should be the carving-knives and the first dinner-plates to be used. Here the butler divides the fish and carves the piece de resistance, the fillet of beef, the haunch of venison, or the turkey. It is from this sidetable that all the dinner should be served; if the dining room is small, the table can be placed in the hall or adjacent pantry. With the fish should be served chablis or some kind of white wine; with the soup, sherry; with the roast, claret and champagne. Sparkling wines, hock and champagne, are not decanted, but are kept in ice pails, and opened as required. On the sideboard is placed the wine decanted for use, and poured out as needed; after the game has been handed, decanters of madeira and port are placed before the host, who sends them round to his guests. No tablespoons should be laid on the table, except those to be used for soup, and the extra spoons, cruets and casters are put on the sideboard. Hot dinner-plates are prepared when the fish is removed, and on those hot plates the butler serves all the meats; the guests are also served with hot plates before the entries, except pate de foie gras, for which a cold plate is necessary. A vegetable is served with each course, potatoes with the fish, asparagus, egg-plant or any preferred vegetable with the roast. Some discretion should be shown by the servant who passes the entries. A large tablespoon and fork should be placed on the dish, and the dish held low at the left hand of the guest. After the game is served comes the salad and cheese, then the ices and sweets, and then cheese savourie or cheese fondur. This is only a toasted cheese, in a very elegant form, and is served in little silver shells, sometimes as early in the dinner as just after the oysters, but the favorite time is after the sweets. The dessert is followed by the liqueurs, which should be poured into very small glasses, and handed by the butler. When the ices are removed, a dessert-plate of glass, with a finger-bowl, is placed before each person. Pretty little fanciful doylys are now also put under the finger-bowl, merely to be looked at. Large and handsome napkins should lie at each plate; but removed when the first course is brought, and with each finger bowl should be a colored napkin. After the fruits go round the sugar-plums and a little dried ginger are passed before the coffee. The gentlemen are left to wine and cigars, liqueurs and cognac; and the ladies retire to the drawing-room to chat and take their coffee.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

LUNCHEON.

An English luncheon is exactly what a plain American dinner was formerly. In this country one waiter generally remains during the whole meal, and serves the table as he would at dinner—only with less ceremony. If a hot luncheon is served, it is not etiquette to put the vegetables on the table; they should be served. The table is already full of the articles for dessert, and there is no place for the vegetables. At an informal luncheon the hot entries or cold entries are placed before the master or mistress, and each guest is asked what he prefers. If a lady gives a more formal lunch, and has it served a la russe, the first entrie—let us say chops and green peas—is handed by the waiter, commencing with the lady who sits on the right hand of the master of the house. This is followed by vegetables, plates having been renewed, a salad and some cold ham can be offered. The waiter fills the glasses with sherry or offers claret. When champagne is served at lunch, it is immediately after the first dish has been served, and claret and sherry are not then given, unless asked for. After the salad a fresh plate, with a dessert-spoon and small fork upon it, is placed before each person. The ice cream, pie or pudding is then placed in front of the hostess, who cuts it and puts a portion on each plate. After these dainties have been discussed a glass plate, serviette and finger-bowl are placed before each guest for fruit. The servant takes the plate from his mistress, after she has filled it, and hands it to the lady of first consideration, and so on. Tea and coffee are never served after luncheon in the drawing-room or dining-room.

Table mats are no longer used in stylish houses, either at luncheon or at dinner. Menu-cards are never used at luncheon. Salt cellars and small water carafes may be placed up and down the luncheon table.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

HIGH TEA.

The table for a "High tea" is usually arranged without a tablecloth; at each place should be a plate doyly and a tumbler doyly; in the center of the table an embroidered center piece, in colors, in harmony with the table decorations and the flowers it is intended to use. At the head of the table, upon an embroidered square, are laid the tea service, the urn, the cups and saucers, the cream pitcher, sugar basket, etc. At the other end upon another embroidered square may be placed the peice de resistance of the "High tea." Scattered about on circular doylys are the dishes of jelly, preserves, pickles, sweet and sour, olives, cakes, etc. At each place, resting upon the plate doily, should be a handsome plate and the necessary silver and goblet, a bread and butter plate and a salt cellar. All the cold dishes are placed upon the table before the meal is announced, and the hot ones served immediately upon the guests being seated. Broiled chicken and waffles, fried oysters and hot biscuits and creamed chicken are always in order. Hot buttered and hot dry toast belong properly to the high tea, as do the chicken and lobster salad. The tea and coffee are served with the meat. Generally the sweet portion consists merely of cake, jelly and preserves. Ice cream is sometimes served and whipped cream or charlotte russe. Thin slices of white and brown bread, carefully buttered, make a welcome addition to the menu. A high tea is served in courses like a dinner, excepting with less formality.

WEDDINGS.

An afternoon wedding usually takes place between half past two and half past three o'clock; an evening wedding between half past seven and half-past eight, and a morning wedding at twelve e'clock (high noon.)

It is customary to seat a wedding party at small tables.

Presents should be sent to the bride even if your acquaintance is only with the bridegroom.

At a "seated supper" the bride and bridegroom are placed at the side of the table in the center; the family of the bride are next the bridegroom, and vice versa. The bride gives souvenirs to her attendants, the bridegroom to the best man and ushers.

The bride's mother usually attends to the sending out of the "at home" and announcement cards.

At a church wedding the usher escorts each lady to her seat, offering his arm, which she should accept If a party of ladies are together each should wait her turn to be properly conducted to her place.

Pieces of silver, sent as wedding presents, should be marked with initials of the bride.

The linen furnished by the bride should have the initials of her maiden name upon it.

The bride's family furnish the carriages for the bridal party. The bridegroom furnishes a carriage for the clergyman, also one that takes him and his best man to the church. —Ladies' Home Journal.

Very few people have the golden opportunity of living together for fifty years in the holy estate of matrimony. A card printed in gold letters, announcing that John Anderson and Mary Brown were married, for instance, in 1830, and will celebrate their golden wedding in 1880, is generally the only golden manifestation.

For a silver wedding the cards are issued, printed in silver, somewhat in this style :

1856. 1881.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter

request the pleasure of your company on Wednesday, October the twenty-seventh, at eight o'clock.

Silver Wedding.

John Carter. Sarah Smith.

Tin weddings, which occur after ten years have passed over two married heads, are signals for a general frolic.

Wooden weddings occur after five years of marriage, and afford the bride much refurnishing of the kitchen, and nowadays some beautiful presents of wood carving.

The twentieth anniversary of one's wedding is never celebrated. It is considered very unlucky to even allude to it.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

MATINEES AND SOIREES.

A matinee is a social gathering before dinner, from two till four or half past. A soiree is a social gathering early in the evening, called an "evening party." It need not exclude dancing, but dancing is not its excuse for being. It means a very bright conversazione, or a reading, or a musicale, with pretty evening dress (not necessarily ball dress), a supper and early hours.

In no modern form of entertainment can we better produce this finer atmosphere, this desirable sympathy between the world of fashion and that of thought, than by matinees and soirees, when given under favorable circumstances.

There are many advantages in a morning party. It affords to ladies, who do not go to evening receptions, the pleasure of meeting informally, and is also a well chosen occasion for introducing an author of celebrity, a new pianist or singer. Many ladies have their matinees on some one of the national holidays - Washington's birthday, Thanksgiving or Decoration day. On these occasions a matinee is well attended by gentlemen. It is proper to offer a very substantial buffet, as people rarely lunch before two o'clock, and will be glad of a bit of a bird, a cup of bouillon or a leaf of salad.

When a hostess takes the pains to issue an invitation to a soiree a week or a fortnight before it is to occur, she should be repaid by the careful dressing and early arrival of her guests. It may be proper to go to a reception in a bonnet, but never to a soiree. Of course, a certain exclusiveness must mark all our matinees and soirees. They would fail of the chief element of diversion if one invited everybody. The hostess may bring about the most genial democracy if she manages properly.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

FLORAL TRIBUTES AND DECORATIONS.

One of the most regal lunches, given to twenty eight ladies, set the fashion for using little gilt baskets, with covers opening on either side of the handle. These pretty baskets had on each side a bunch of flowers peeping out through the open cover, and on the gilt handle was tied a ribbon corresponding in color to the flowers. One of them having soft, pink rosebuds of exceeding size and loveliness on one side and a bunch of lillies-of-the-valley on the othes, with a bow of pink satin ribbon on the handle.

A floral bag, an ingenious plan by which roses may be hung at the side of the wearer at a dinner, has been invented. The roses or other flowers are tied together with wires, in the shape of a reticule, and a ribbon and pin provided, so that the lady may fasten her floral trophy at her side.

Among the typical baskets that shall say bon voyage to those friends who are leaving these shores for foreign parts, are floral ships, anchors, stars, crosses, mottoes, monograms and the national flag.

Baskets of flowers and the odornments of the epergne for a table are very apt to be all of one flower. Some tables are set with scarlet carnations alone, and the effect is very fine.

The floral decorations at weddings this year have reached a degree of splendor and elaborateness quite beyond anything ever attempted before.

The great number of bouquets sent to debutants is often embarrassing. The present fashion is to have them hung, by different ribbons, on the arm, so that they look as if almost a trimming to the dress.

The large fountain bouquet reaching to the end of the skirt, has become the fashion for brides. It is composed of orchids, long-stemmed roses and trailing vines.

In Eighteen Ninety-seven the American Beauty is the favorite flower.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

COMFORTS OF PERFECT SERVICE.

Miss Parloa's closing lecture before the New York Y. W. C. A. was full of interest and instruction to the housekeeper who realizes the importance of careful table service, the proper care of china, glass, silver and steel. Among the certain definite rules laid down for all houses, simple or elegant, is that the dining room, to be at its best, should be well lighted and thoroughly ventilated; the chairs with backs almost straight, and the table broad. A thick silence cloth of cotton-flannel should be placed under the tablecloth, to give body to it and to deaden the sound. The table linen should be as fine as the purse allows. Great stress was làid by Miss Pàrloa on the importance of having à table always dainty and well appointed, whether guests are present or not. In setting the table the cloth must be put on perfectly true and even. Knives and spoons should be placed at right, forks at left, having the hàndles just reaching the edge of the table, the knife with the sharp edge in and the forks turned down. Tumblers should be placed at the right and at the point of the knife. The napkins can be placed at one side or in the plate, if fresh; individual butter or bread plates at left; serving at the left, except the pouring of water. Large dishes, like platters, should be carried in the hand in passing, small dishes on the tray. Miss Parloa prefers carving done at the table, and advises all women to make the art their own. Promptness in service is also important, as well as the dictum to see that hot dishes are hot and cold dishes cold. Regarding the care of silver, the opinion was given that if thoroughly washed in hot suds and rubbed dry with soft, clean towels each time it was used, a general cleaning once a month would be quite sufficient. The old custom of keeping silver, when not in use, in flannel bags is now condemned on account of the sulpher used in the manufacture of the flannel. Bags of Canton flaunel for large pieces of silver, as well as compartment bags for each knife or fork, will be found invaluable. Ivory-handled knives require special care, the handles being never allowed to go in the dish pan. Spots can be removed and polished surfàce restored to ivory handles by powdered pumice stone ànd water, if accompanied by exceedingly vigorous rubbing.

MOURNING.

While in deep mourning a maiden wears a cap and cuffs of sheer white crape. The cap and long veil are not worn for less than one year, and thê period of mourning for a widow, we are told, should last eighteen months, for six months the dress should be of crape cloth or Henrietta covered entirely with crape. Dull black kid gloves are worn in first mourning. After that silk gloves are proper, particularly in summer. All kinds of black fur and seal-skin are worn in deep mourning.

Mourning for a parent should last one year. During half a year should be worn Henrietta or serge trimmed with crape, at first with black tulle at the wrists and neck. A deep veil is worn at the back of the bonnet, but not over the head or face, like the widow's veil, which covers the entire person when down. Mourning for a brother or sister may be the same; for a stepfather or stepmother, the same; for grandparents, the same; but the duration may be shorter. Mourning for children shonld last nine months.

There is a kind of complimentary mourning which does not necessitate seclusion—that which is worn out of respect to a husband's relation, whom one may never have seen. But no one wearing a héavy crape veil should go to a gay reception, a wedding or a theatre.

The period of mourning for an aunt or uncle or cousin is of three months' duration, and that time at least should elapse before the family go out or into gay company or are seen at theatres or operas, etc.

A letter of condolence should be written as soon as possible, and pains should be taken to acknowledge all letters of condolence and flowers received at the death of a relative.

Visiting cards and stationery, bordered with black, are only used while one is wearing crape; that is, in deepest mourning.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Vegetables "a la Julienne" are vegetables that have been cut into slices either long or short, thick or thin.

Guests should be served first if they are ladies; if not, the ladies of the house should first be helped, then the visiting gentlemen.

The sending of flowers to outbound passengers has become a foolish fashion, and the display is vulgar. Flowers in the close atmosphere of a ship are anything but grateful; send fruit or sweets, or books and magazines.

LADIES HOME JOURNAL.

A note in answer to a invitation should be written in the third person, if the invitation be in the third person for instance.

Mr. and Mrs. Cadogan have great pleasure in accepting the polite invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland
for dinner on the seventeenth inst, at seven o'clock,
Eighteen Lombard Square,
July Sixth.

No letter or note should be written on ruled paper. A margin around the edge of the paper is no longer ruleable, people now write all over the paper.

MRS. JOHN SHERWOOD.

A bib pin with the birthday stone for the month in which a child was born is an appropriate gift for a birth day for an infant, and also two pins to catch up the sleeves on the shoulder.

The birthday stones for the months are: January, garnet; February, amathyst; March, blood stone; April, diamond; May, emereld; June, pearl; July, ruby; August, moonstone; September, sapphire; October, opal; November, topaz; December, turquoise.

When two ladies are introduced it is not necessary for either to rise; neither is it necessary for a lady to rise when a gentleman is presented to her.

Thê banishment of the sugar bowl from the tables of the ultra-fashionabie, is an accomplished fact. The sugar basket usurps the time honored bowl.

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL.

The minuet and Vienna quadrille have been revived.—Mrs. John Sherwood.

The laws of etiquette do not permit us to use numerals, as 3, 4, 5, but demand that we write out three, four, five. The date should follow the signing of the name.—Mrs. John Sherwood.

In this country, where we have no titles, it is the custom to abbreviate everything except the title of "Reverend," which we always give to the clergy. A Bishop should be addressed "To the Right Reverend John Smith, Bishop of Ohio." In addressing a Bishop one would begin "Right Reverend and Dear Sir." To a Doctor, "Doctor James Reiley," to a lawyer, unless he occupies a position on the bench, should be addressed simply to James Robinson Esq.,. All returned ambassadors, members of Congress, and members of the Legislature should be given the title of "Honorable." You must not divide what you have to write into paragraphs, but write it continuously, you must not write on each side of your sheet, one after the other, just as they come. Use the front page first, then turn it over and fill up the back, then the other side of the front page, writing crosswise from top to bottom and so on down, filling both the inside pages. Date your letter at the lower left hand corner at the end of the letter. The year and day of the month should be expressed in words.

The Best is None Too Good

And the Apparatus which will best supply comfortable homes in winter weather is none too good for the patrons of this book.

That we have the best Heaters in the market for that purpose is vouched for by the highest medal, which has been held by our apparatus since 1885, and shown by the following extract from a personal letter from our principal competitor.

TOLEDO, O., June 4th, 1896.

"Mr. S. T. Bryce, City:

DEAR SIR:—The Bryce furnace, properly made, properly set and tenderly cared for, is the best residence furnace I ever saw. Yours Truly, ISAAC D. SMEAD.

The highest type of Sanitary Home Heating of the present day is the Combination Hot-Water and Hot-Air System. We are prepared to install this, or the latest up-to-date system of warm air heating under the direction of expert engineers of experience, and insure satisfaction.

Write or call upon us before purchasing elsewhere.

Holmes' LAUNDRY

NOT THAT ITS FIRST IS IT BEST,
BUT THAT ITS BEST IS IT FIRST.

I neither fear criticism, or solicit sympathy.

I give value received.

MY WORK IS POPULAR FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

I retain the original whiteness. I give the genuine domestic finish when so ordered. I do not distort your shirt bosoms or stretch your collars and cuffs, but give them their original shape.
